DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1, 9, 11, 12 and 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Hajicek et al.

Hajicek discloses the heat dissipation device and method for an electronic apparatus comprising a circuit board 12 mounted in a housing 48, a heat sink plate 26 having a bottom face rested on a surface of the housing 48, a heat conductive plate 22 having a bottom face rested on a top face of the heat sink plate 26 and the top face rested on a bottom face of the circuit board 12; a heat sink material 24 placed between the top face of the heat sink plate 26 and the bottom face of the heat conductive plate 22.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 2-6, 10, 16-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hajicek et al.

Art Unit: 2835

Hajicek discloses the claimed invention except for materials for the housing, the heat sink plate and the heat sink material. The heat conductive rubber, copper, aluminum and silver are known for its good heat conduction and widely used in the industry. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use heat conductive rubber, copper, aluminum or silver and the heat sink paste, since it has been held to be within the general skill of a worker in the art to select a known material on the basis of its suitability for the intended use as a matter of obvious design choice. In re Leshin, 125 USPQ 416.

5. Claims 7, 8, 13, 14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hajicek et al. in view of Smith et al.

Hajicek discloses the claimed invention except the heat sink material provided between the housing and the bottom surface of the heat sink.

Smith shows the heat sink material 14 and 16 provided on both sides of the heat conducting element 13 and between the heat conducting elements 20 and 13. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to place the heat conducting material on both sides of the heat sink plate as disclosed by Smith in the structure disclosed by Hajicek et al. for reliable heat transfer between two elements.
